A young female boarder, who was on the second floor, heard the burglar whistling "She May Have Seen Better Days," but, thinking it was the landlady's son, thought no more of it. This is a successful innovation for burglars. Therefore, if you ever hear a man whistling in your home get a broad ax or a gun and be after him at once, for it may be a burglar.

He has served notice upon his friends that they can do him good service only in assisting to make Ohio solid for the man he will nominate for president at St. Louis. His speech created a sensation at the first session of the republican state convention at Columbus on Tuesday the 10th. Its reward was a salvo of applause which rattled the chandelier in the ceiling. Appended is the text of Gen. Foraker's speech:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention: I sincerely thank the state central committee for the honor of tempotarily presiding over this convention, and I most heartily thank you, gentlemen of the convention, for your kind and en-thusiastic greeting.

"Ordinarily, as I understand it, it is thought to be the chief duty of the terr-porary chairman of a convention like this to discuss current political question; and define party positions. Ordinarily I should make that kind of an address on such an occasion as this. It is possible you are ex-pecting some such remarks. If so you will disappointed, for, in my judgment, that kind of an address is not necessary under the circumstances attending us here to-day. It is not necessary because everybody knows that no matter what questions may be discussed in the coming campaign, the one great towering, supreme issue in the contest of 1896 will be whether for the next four years this country shall be ruled by democracy or by republicanism-[applause]-and everybody knows in advance what the verdict will be. [Applause.] Even our democratic friends understand and can see that the sweeping victories States authorities will not be as strict about seizing suspected vessels here[Applause.] The republican party was hever so strong, never so powerful, never so popular, never so intrenched in the hearts and affections of the American peo-Pic as it is to-day; and so far, at least, as Ohio is concerned, never so united or harmonlous as at this very hour. that city is famous, and was greatly astonished at what he saw.

The old way of making shoes, in which one man started and completed the shoe, has entirely changed. Now each operator does just one part toward completing the shoe, and in going from the cutter to the finisher's hands the shoe is handled by 60 different people, one-half of whom are girls.

The gentleman interviewed several of the operators and found that in manufacturing high grade shoes, such as is made by the Desnovers Shoe Co., that only the best help is employed, and they receive correspondis employed, and they for the segment ingly high wages.

The gentleman had seen these goods in all the large cities in this country, and was not surprised to learn that the firm is supplying fine shoes to 3,600 large dealers. He carried away a pair of their shoes with him as a memento of his visit, and is now advising his friends to buy no other. Lexyy Bings whene'er he sings. So much does he deserve; Tis not his voice makes me rejoice-
